■ Why do you need SGI Environmental?

- There has been increasing scrutiny from local, state and federal agencies, along with the public, on industry emissions and impact on air quality.
- A significant amount of emissions tracking, permitting and reporting is required of each facility, which, if not completed properly, can result in costly fines.
- Understanding which permit applies, based on production at each facility, can effectively minimize pollution prevention costs, positively impacting the company's "bottom line".
- We apply process engineering techniques to maximize operating efficiencies, providing environmental compliance and cost savings to our clients.

■ How Can SGI Environmental help your organization?

- We will be your proponent and aggressively negotiate with the regulatory agencies for the most applicable and effective approach.
- We will provide you with interpretation of regulations pertaining to your activities including:
  - Air Permitting Feasibility
  - Operational Flexibility
  - Control Technology Assessments
  - Compliance Assurance
- We will assist you in developing value-added tools to assist in tracking throughput and annual emissions for Fee Emission Reports and Emission Inventory Summary Reports.
- We provide process engineering support in sustaining Air Quality compliance, optimizing manufacturing productivity, and controlling costs.

SGI's Air Quality Services support enables the EHS Manager to continue with their day-to-day activities while improving overall efficiency and minimizing overhead cost.
